

Intel Statement

Intel is committed to the highest standards of ethical conduct, human rights, and social and environmental responsibility, and to maintaining and improving systems and processes that help protect workers and prevent human rights violations in our operations and supply chain.

Intel is also committed to transparency in our supply chain and is a member of the Responsible Business Alliance (RBA). The RBA Code of Conduct includes requirements for companies to conduct workplace hazard assessments for pregnant/nursing women, and to provide accommodations for pregnant and nursing women to reduce health and safety risks on the job.

Our Global Human Rights Principles outline our expectations for safe and fair working conditions. More information, including our sourcing policy, can be found at our Corporate Responsibility page.